Comment Of The Day

NO VOICE IN ASIA

ASIAN nationalism, the driving force which brought Asia's Prime Ministers to Bandung four years ago is on the wane. It reached its peak at Bandung, but the events of the last year have undermined the enthusiasm which was paramount at the time of the conference.

The feeling at Bandung was not Communist, but rather neutralist with an anti-Western flavour.

Since then there has been the Tibetan takeover, the dissolution of the Communist Kernal Government, the frontier problems of India and China, and the apparent Communist threat to Laos.

National Terms

EACH can be explained in national terms or as an aspect of inter-Asian conflict as they do not fit into any pattern set at Bandung.

Since the initial conference there has been no enthusiasm for another meeting since it is apparent that it could not hope to solve the current problems. Today Asia faces its own realities and must reach its own solutions.

Tibet is a prime example. There is no slightest doubt that China is determined to restore what she believes to be her old frontiers, irrespective of any agreement about the McMahon Line with the result that her power is being exerted on India.

Taking Stock

INDIA is desperately trying to ignore the Tibetan issue and keep it out of the United Nations, but Mr Nehru must surely be taking stock of the situation and having second thoughts about India's co-existence with China.

In any event the impact has been felt by the other Asian nations with sufficient force to make them aware of China's exclusiveness.

Kernal does not fit into any pan-Asian context and the lessons learned through the dismissal of the Communist State Government will undoubtedly cause the Indian Communists to change their tactics.

These two external and internal problems reduce Mr Nehru's potency as the voice of Asia and he certainly cannot now claim to be the overall leader.

Left-Over

WHETHER Laos is a local problem remains to be seen. In any case it is a left-over from the Indo-China war and current indications show that it will remain as a headache unless the Government can come to terms with the Pathet Lao.

Elsewhere in Asia the problems are internal ones which can only be solved by those nations alone, without interference from outside.

The spirit of Bandung has evaporated and the Western nations, which once looked with apprehension at the rising tide in Asia, must now reappraise the situation and treat each country as a separate entity and not as a complex whole.

OPENING SESSION OF ELECTRICITY INQUIRY COMMISSION CHAIRMAN tells of 'OUR DUTIES'

'Just And Proper Solution To Problem'

The Commission set up to inquire into the position of electricity supply companies in Hongkong had a brief opening session this morning in the Legislative Council Chamber and then adjourned for a week.

The Chairman, Mr J. Mould said at this morning's opening session that the adjournment was to enable all parties to study copies of the written submissions received in evidence and the Commission's procedure. Addressing the session, Mr Mould said the Commission was well aware of the importance of the issues raised and for the need to make recommendations which would embody a just and proper solution to the problem of electricity in Hongkong.

Mr Mould said the terms of reference "place upon us three main duties—
 ☆ to establish the facts relating to electricity supply in Hongkong;
 ☆ to make positive and constructive proposals to Government as to the form and extent of the control that should in future be imposed upon suppliers of electricity; and
 ☆ to advise on the method of assessment of compensation to be used should our proposals be carried into effect and should these proposals embody action giving rise to compensation."

The Role

"Already the Commission has taken steps to ascertain where and where it should seek the evidence likely to assist it in arriving at a full understanding of the matters about which it will have to advise Government in due course.
 "It has visited many different parts of the Colony, and has seen at first hand the role that electricity plays in the life of the community. In order that this most important consideration be fully appreciated, it has endeavoured to acquaint itself with the ways of life and the requirements of every section of the population, and to observe the manner in which electricity, or the lack of it, takes effect in each.

"Resettlement areas, factories large and small, business and domestic premises within the urban areas, and agricultural areas in the New Territories, have all been visited by the Commission, and in each the Commission has endeavoured to gauge the importance of an efficient service of electricity, and to estimate the relationship that the cost of electricity bears, at present day prices, in the budgets of consumers and potential consumers."

"We have examined in considerable detail the premises, equipment, accounts, and business methods of the two electric supply companies; and apart from any specialised knowledge that we may have in our own particular fields, we consider that we have already acquired much knowledge about problems pertaining to electricity production and distribution in this part of the world."

Not All Relevant

"I should like to take the opportunity of thanking those who have already given us so much assistance, and in particular those who have presented written submissions to us. Not all of these submissions appear to be relevant of our terms of reference, but those that are will receive our most earnest consideration, as will all matters that emerge during the course of our hearings."

"You may rest assured that we will examine all evidence likely to bear materially on these considerations, and that we regard it of prime importance that we should come to know the sentiments of the people of Hongkong on these most important matters."

"We have no doubt that our public hearings will be most fruitful in providing us with the information we require; and we are happy to know that during the course of them we will have the benefit of the assistance of so many members of the public and of so many able persons and associations."

Procedure

Mr Mould said in the course of an explanation of procedure that parties will be called upon to present their cases to the Commission in the following manner:—

- Each party or its representative may address the Commission.
- Each party may give oral evidence before the Commission. Oral evidence will be limited to evidence of fact save in the case of expert witnesses.
- Each party may call witnesses in support of its case.
- Evidence given by or on behalf of a party will be subject to cross-examination by all other parties. Cross-examination will be limited to questions of fact save in the case of expert witnesses.
- Re-examination of witnesses will be permitted.
- The Commission may question all parties and their representatives.

Prisoner Missed His Breakfast

A judge and a barrister today took time out from a trial to discuss the plight of a convict-witness who missed his breakfast.
 The witness was T. K. Ganshani, former accountant for the Vasanani Trading Company, who appeared at the conspiracy trial of the company's 26-year-old director, Lucky Vasanani.
 He disclosed on Friday afternoon that he had not been given breakfast before being brought to court from prison, where he is serving a five-month term for conspiracy. He also said he had only a skimpy lunch and a few chapattis (Indian pancakes) and coffee. So, at the request of Vasanani's counsel Mr Brock Bernaschi, Judge B. J. Jennings excused Ganshani from testifying further.
 Today, Judge Jennings told Mr Bernaschi he had investigated the question of the missing breakfast. He said there had been a slip-up by prison authorities but they had promised Ganshani would receive his proper food allowance in future.
 Mr Bernaschi suggested that perhaps Ganshani could have his main meal of the day at luncheon instead of in the evening to fortify him for today's session in the witness box.
 Ganshani spent the morning giving evidence as a defence witness.

POLICE OFFICER NOT GUILTY OF CORRUPTION Key Witness Says Never Saw Accused

The Evans corruption case came to a sudden end this morning after a key witness Chan Lee-chun, who testified that she made payments to a man on eight different days, denied that she had ever seen Evans before the case came to court.

When Chan said that the man whom she saw when she made the payments was another man, the Crown Counsel, Mr D. N. E. Rea closed his case abruptly.
 Mr A. S. C. Comber, defending Evans immediately submitted that the Crown had not made out a prima facie case.
 Judge T. C. Creighton found Evans not guilty, on each charge.
 Sub-inspector John Evans, pleaded not guilty to having received a total of $39,245 as a reward for leading a band of Chinese entering Hongkong from the Philippines between September last year and February this year, in his position as officer for Chinese registration in the Immigration Office.

Chan, now serving a sentence in Leichok Women's Prison, is the wife of Wong Chan-ho, an immigration broker who is facing deportation proceedings.

DID NOT REMEMBER

Questioned by Mr Rea she said she could not remember the telephone number of the person which was given to her by Chan Lee-chun and that she did not remember the number of the car. She said she agreed that she told Inspector Poole that she saw this man but denied that she remembered him. She also denied that she told the in-

K Leaves U.S. With Promises Of Break In Berlin Deadlock

Washington, Sept. 27.
 The Soviet Premier, Mr Nikita S. Khrushchev left for Moscow tonight after agreeing with President Eisenhower to try to break the Berlin deadlock, probably at a summit meeting early next year.

Ending his hectic 13-day visit, Mr Khrushchev took off for home in his jet liner, ready to welcome the President when he repays the visit and goes to Russia sometime next spring. The Soviet leader left from the Andrews Air Force Base about 14 miles from here.
 At the conclusion of three days of man-to-man conferences, the President and Mr Khrushchev renounced war as a solution to the Berlin and other East-West problems. Instead they decided to talk some more about Berlin, probably at a summit conference before the President goes to Moscow.

PROGRESS

They also reported substantial progress toward increasing cultural exchanges between the United States and Russia and decided to reopen negotiations on Russia's big World War II lend-lease debt. Further, they pledged a constructive approach to disarmament.
 Although Mr Khrushchev for the first time agreed to a disarmament inspection system, he cautioned Americans that they should not expect any "sudden change" in the cold war as a result of his 13-day U.S. visit.
 At the same time, he pledged that he "will make every effort to put an end to the cold war."
 In a day that kept him almost constantly on the move, Mr Khrushchev ended his Camp David talks with the President, returned to Washington with Mr Eisenhower, held a televised news conference and delivered a radio-television address to the American people.
 The Vice President, Mr Richard M. Nixon told Mr Khrushchev shortly before he left that the Soviet Premier's visit could be "a significant step toward establishing a pattern for settling East-West differences."

'OKAY'

Mr Khrushchev replied that he hoped future U.S.-Soviet relations could be described with "that short, good American word, 'okay'." He said there were many issues outstanding between this country and Russia but the peoples of both should look forward, not back.
 In his televised address Mr Nikita Khrushchev said he liked America's beautiful cities and "wonderful roads but most of all he liked the 'kind-hearted' American people."
 Mr Khrushchev spoke a few hours before his scheduled return to Moscow.
 He said that his words of praise for the American people were more than the customary gesture given by a guest to his hosts.
 He said the Russians wanted to live in peace and friendship with the American people.

Eagle To Make Low-Fare Flight

Eagle Aviation, who are awaiting a decision to operate a regular low-fare service between Hongkong and London, have been granted permission to run a special flight over the planned route.

The cost of the flight between Hongkong and London will be £190 — one-way. This cuts the present cost of a tourist passage to London by £85. The local agent for Eagle Aviation said this morning that he could not say whether the flights are regular yet.

He had just received word from London about this one flight.
 This has been cleared by the Ministry of Civil Aviation in the U.K., and the Department of Civil Aviation in Hongkong.
 There are a limited number of seats available on the flight. The agent said a number of enquiries had been received during the morning.

Wedding Guests Poisoned

Sidley, Sept. 27.
 Eighty-four wedding guests were taken ill after two celebration banquets and were believed to have been poisoned by bad pastries.
 Three of the guests were severely ill. An inquiry has been opened.
 One of the banquets was held at San Giovanni Clementi and the other at Cammarato, near Agrigento.—AFP.

Trust Fund Shares Sold, Ruttonjee Says In Declaration

The three members of the Electricity Commission of Inquiry today made declarations that they did not own any interest in, nor had they ever taken part in the management of China Light and Power and Hongkong Electric companies.
 Mr Dhun Ruttonjee, the only local member of the Commission, said in his declaration that he last held shares in Hongkong Electric on September 23, 1951 and China Light on August 28, 1951.
 He continued:
 "In addition to having once possessed these shareholdings, I am a person named as being entitled to portion of a reversionary interest in a trust fund created by my mother if still living after the fall of her life and of two other persons named in the instrument creating the trust fund. The trust fund was created in 1953 and the trust fund contained, inter alia, 1,200 HK Electric Co., Ltd. shares and 500 China Light & Power Co., Ltd. shares.
 "That there was such a trust fund, and that it contained shares in these electric supply companies, were facts known to me until September 23, 1959. All of these shares were disposed of by the trustees on the day after.
 "I have no doubt whatsoever that my impartiality in this inquiry will not be affected to the slightest degree by reason of any previous interests I have had in these two companies."

Laotian Troops Attack And Capture Outpost

Vientiane, Sept. 27.
 Government troops, supported by mortars, recaptured a vital outpost in the northwestern tip of Sam Neua Province early today.

They encountered little opposition presumably because the Communists were withdrawing the bulk of the troops for action elsewhere while the United Nations fact-finding group was in Laos.
 A week ago the government slowed its advance by slipping in small patrols close to the river, but keeping their main forces well away from the range of rebel strength.
 Within the last few days, however, government troops apparently began a new concerted move toward the river, peacemaker resulting in the recapture today of Muong Het.
 It is expected the Government will attempt to retake all of the River Ma territory.—UPI.

MOVE NORTH
 A fortnight ago, the Government began moving northward after having evacuated most of the territory along the River Ma perimeter.

Rossellini: 'I Feel Like A Father Toward Ingrid'

Rome, Sept. 27.
 Roberto Rossellini, the Italian film director, told the Rome newspaper Il Messaggero in an interview published today he "harboured a feeling of extraordinary tenderness and affection" for Ingrid Bergman, the Swedish actress who is still his wife under Italian law.
 "More than tenderness, I should say that my feeling for her is like that of a father for a daughter who is of age and has some things without needing me," the newspaper quoted him as saying.
 Referring to his application for permanent custody of their three children, which will be heard on October 16, Signor Rossellini declared, "In brief, I absolutely do not want to stir up any proceedings as a father."
 "I become a tiger when they touch my children. Even my defamers say so."
 Signor Rossellini was asked whether he would marry Ingrid Bergman again if she were a new living in Rome, if his marriage with Ingrid Bergman is annulled.
 He was quoted as replying, "Even if there will be a marriage—that is, a juridical formalization of a relationship—the human aspect of the children will remain unaffected."
 "That is, as far as I am concerned, the children must live outside their parents' private affairs."
 A Rome judge awarded provisional custody of the three children—Robellino, 9, and seven-year-old twin daughters, Isotta and Ingrid—to Ingrid Bergman on condition that they spend two of the three months of their summer holiday with their father in Italy. Under this arrangement they were to have been returned to Ingrid Bergman in Berlin last August 25, but Signor Rossellini obtained an extension of his custody until October 2.—Reuters.

The dedication service of K. L. Reichelt Memorial School was held at 10 o'clock this morning at the school premises on the roof of "J" Block, Li Cheng Uk estate, Kowloon.

This new roof-top primary school with two well-furnished classrooms and accommodation of 120 pupils, is run and financed by the Christian-Buddhist Mission of Sweden, Norway and Denmark.

The dedication service was performed by the Rev. G. M. Reichelt, son of the late Dr K. L. Reichelt.

Request For Debate On Tibet Question

United Nations, Sept. 28.

The Dalai Lama's appeal for United Nations intervention on behalf of Tibet was expected to be taken up today with a formal request for debate on Communist Chinese "violation" of human rights in the troubled land.

Ireland, which has been active for days in backstage consultations over how best to raise the question, was said to be ready with a proposal for debate.

The Federation of Malaya, and possibly other members, also were reported prepared to join in sponsoring a draft resolution.

Usually reliable sources said Ireland's plan was to have the question aired in the General Assembly after the world affairs debate is over, probably early next month.

REPROBATION

In one of the sharpest comments on the Tibetan situation which the Assembly had heard, Mr. Frank Aiken, Ireland's Foreign Minister, spoke of "feelings of abhorrence and reprobation" aroused by the Peking Government's actions in Tibet.

Saying that fundamental human rights had been "violated and set at naught," he declared it would be fitting for the Assembly to express its views on this "in an appropriate resolution."—Reuter.

SHANGHAI CLAIMS RECORD—COTTON OUTPUT

Tokyo, Sept. 27.

China claimed today that Shanghai alone surpassed all of Britain last year in the output of cotton yarn and cotton piece goods.

A New China News Agency broadcast, monitored in Tokyo, said Shanghai textile workers accomplished this feat with only one-tenth as many spindles and one-fifth as many weaving machines as in Britain.

Commended For Catching Thief

A magistrate at Central this morning congratulated and highly commended the prompt action of a young man in catching a snatcher.

The youth, Mr Kwong Yuen-wai, 28, arrested Wong Chu, 23, out-cloater, after a chase on the night of September 22, at On Lok Lane, Wanchai, when he heard a schoolgirl, Yip Cheung-ying, shout for help. Wong had earlier snatched a gold necklace from the girl.

Mr T. L. Yang, Magistrate, said he hoped the Press would give "full publicity" to the case.

Mr Yang sentenced Wong, who pleaded guilty to larceny to two years' imprisonment and five strokes of the cane. The defendant was also placed under police supervision for two years.

FOUND IN LANE

Detective Sub-Inspector M. H. Grooms, prosecuting, told the court that at 10 p.m. last Tuesday, the girl was walking with a friend in Hennessy Road. Defendant ran up from behind and snatched the necklace, breaking the chain. She turned around and saw defendant running into On Lok Lane. She shouted and gave chase. Inspector Grooms said that Mr Kwong Yuen-wai heard the shout and joined in the chase. They lost the defendant but Mr Kwong later found him squatting at the end of the lane and took him to a police station.

Defendant had 13 previous convictions including larceny, burglary, possession of an instrument for unlawful purpose, possession of dangerous drugs and others.

Govt Claims Land For School

The Government intends to build a Primary School in Lo Fu Ngam on the fringe of the re-settlement estate.

For this project, the Government is claiming the return of about 18,555 sq. ft. of agricultural land owned by 48 people.

A compensation Board sat at the Kowloon Magistracy building this morning, to determine the amount of compensation to be paid to the owners. Judge H. H. B. How, sat as President. Other members of the Board are, Mr F. Shanks, Commissioner of Rating and Valuation and Mr T. A. Sharrick.

Mr J. Lyons, Estate Surveyor of the P.W.D., is representing the Government.

The officers of the Board visited the site soon after it was convened. The session will resume this afternoon.

Typhoon Ship's Passengers Landed

All passengers, including 42 Australians and a few from Hongkong, landed ashore safely from the 7,142-ton British liner Changsha aground near the port of Yokkaichi and were taken by buses to Osaka, according to a message from Japan received by the China Navigation Co. Ltd, here at noon today.

A spokesman of the company here said that the passengers would be given the choice of going to Australia by air or by other ships arranged by the office in Tokyo.

The Changsha, which was caught by Typhoon Vera, went aground on a sandy beach near the Yokkaichi breakwater which is about 10 miles from the port. The ship was stranded broadside with a list of 18 degrees to starboard, and the damage to the ship was not very serious, the spokesman said.

Unregistered Doctor Charge

A 48-year-old woman, Wong Tui-sang, of 184 Johnston Road, first floor, appeared before Mr T. L. Yang at Central Magistracy this morning on charges of being an unregistered medical practitioner and possession of penicillin substances.

It is alleged that on September 23 at room 414 White House Hotel, Wanchai Road, not being a person registered under the Medical Ordinance, Cap. 161, she practised medicine for gain.

It is also alleged that the defendant had in her possession in her home a quantity of penicillin substances.

Wong pleaded guilty to the charges but was remanded for two days pending a certificate regarding the penicillin substances.

Wong is on bail of $750.

Pied Piper Wanted MICE INVADE QUEENSLAND

Queensland is looking for a Pied Piper. Like Hamelin of old, it is being plagued by mice.

For weeks now the animals have been swarming across the Darling Downs. Householders are trying to hold back the invaders with shovels. They set traps, but the mice come on night after night.

But old timers say, it is nothing like Australia's big mouse plague of 1917. It was caused by an accumulation of huge wheat stocks in railway yards and on docks due to the shipping shortage in World War I.

Then farmers had to stand their bedsops in garrafin tins to protect themselves and their mattresses. But the mice still found their way into the mattresses.

Cost Millions

Huge numbers of mice were destroyed but the damage caused ran into millions of pounds. An official destruction campaign in north-west Victoria beggared 30,000,000 mice in six weeks. At one town in Victoria, 6,500,000 mice were killed in one night.

Cold weather finally finished off the mouse invasion and since then the mice have been kept down by mousing farm buildings and silos mouse-proof.

But to-day the mice are not big enough to hold Queensland's

TRENT, VC, COMMANDS VALIANT STATION

London, Sept. 27.

A New Zealander who took part in a big prisoner-of-war escape in Germany in World War II Group Captain Leonard Henry Trent, VC, has been named commander of the Royal Air Force's Valiant bomber station at Wittering, Northamptonshire.

Group Captain Trent was one of 78 captured Allied air crew who dug an escape tunnel from Stalag Luft III and made a break in March, 1944. About 50 were shot after recapture but the Group Captain who was caught at the tunnel exit was returned to prison.

He won the Victoria Cross in May, 1943, when he led a successful daylight bombing raid on an Amsterdam power station in Nazi hands.

After the other eight planes had been shot down Group Captain Trent went on alone to bomb the target before being hit himself and taken prisoner.—China Mail Special.

Election Campaign Becoming Bitter As It Draws To Close

Promise By Mrs K

Washington, Sept. 27. Mrs. Nina Khrushchev today promised a Roman Catholic priest that she would look into his request that she intervene to obtain permission for his mother to leave the Soviet Union and come to the United States.

The mother of Father Joseph Prunke is 71 years old and lives in Lithuania.

Mrs. Khrushchev spoke with the Chicago cleric this morning. —APF.

London, Sept. 27. BRITAIN'S Conservative and Labour parties traded punches today on "tax dodging" and old age pension issues in the latest free-swinging political battle of the country's General Election campaign.

With only 11 days to go before voters visit the polls, Tories and Labour politicians hammered out their party platforms in an atmosphere of bitterness growing out of charges partially sparked by a financial scandal.

Labour leader Hugh Gaitskell charged that Prime Minister Harold Macmillan's Tory party was giving the country "rotten value" for its money.

The hardest blows hinged on a scandal that has rocked London's financial centre through a defaulted "take-over" bid that took the funds of hundreds of small investors.

Retaliation

Labour politicians used the scandal to launch an attack on "tax dodging," adding that millions of tax pounds were going down the drain through illegal use of expense accounts.

Conservative Party leaders retaliated that Labour leaders were making grandiose election promises that would leave them with an empty tax purse if the party were put into office and attempted to carry them out.

Tory leaders also continued to hammer home its "full employment and stable economy" platform.

Angus Bevan, Labour Party "shadow" Foreign Minister, renewed his criticism of the 1956 Anglo-French invasion of the Suez Canal.

Bevan told 1,000 persons in Watlington, South that Mr. Macmillan and Foreign Secretary Selwyn Lloyd were "men with blood on their hands and guilt in their hearts."

"So many hundreds of millions of people know that we ought not to make the ambassadors in the conferences that are to come," he said. —UPI.

Former Gangster Dies

Catania, Sicily, Sept. 27. Former gangster Carmelo Messina, aged 44, died today at Linguaglossa, near Catania, from a brain hemorrhage.

Messina—one of the notorious Messina brothers—was deported from Britain in March 1958 after serving a real term for entering Britain without a passport.

His defence was that, having been born in Egypt of Maltese father, he was of British Nationality—a defence which failed. He was deported to Italy, where the Italian authorities permitted him to live at Linguaglossa, a locality of his family origin.

In July 1956 he was gaoled for 10 months at Bruges, for entering Belgium secretly at the same time his brother was gaoled seven years for procuring girls. —APF.

Attempt To Swim North Channel Ends In Tragedy

Portpatrick, Sept. 27. Jason Zirganos, 49-year-old retired Greek army major, died here today after just failing to become the second man to swim from Northern Ireland to Scotland—a distance of 22 miles.

When his heart had stopped beating, a local doctor made a desperate attempt to revive it with a penicillin operation.

Zirganos was attempting to add the swim to his feat in swimming the 21-mile English Channel between England and France four times, the English Channel 40 times, and circling Manhattan Island, New York.

Zirganos made the bid with Mr. Jack McClelland, a northern Ireland long distance swimmer. McClelland gave up with cramp after two and a half hours, but the Greek kept on for almost 17 hours.

GOES UNDER
Till, about a mile and a half off Portpatrick, he asked people in an accompanying boat for a drink of tea.

A bottle was passed to him, but Zirganos drank from it, then said under the water. Billy Collier, a Bangor, Northern Ireland, lifeguard,

Ike Treats K To A High-Speed Car Ride

Washington, Sept. 27. President Eisenhower treated Premier Khrushchev today to a "Dick Flohr Special"—a breath-taking 80-mile-an-hour ride from Camp David to Washington.

Flohr is Mr. Eisenhower's chauffeur, and he took the two world leaders on a trip that Mr. Khrushchev, at least, is not likely to forget.

Down the mountain side, the speed was limited by the one-lane roads, wooden bridges and blind curves. But once on the Maryland state highway, he opened up.

"Speed is more dangerous than a cobra," a sign said, as Eisenhower and Khrushchev went zooming by at about 70 miles an hour. The speed zones called for varying limits, 60 on the open highway and 30 in the tiny towns. But these were ignored.

16-CAR MOTORCADE
When the 16-car motorcade reached U.S. 240, a dual highway, Flohr touched 85 m.p.h. several times. They went down Washington's Wisconsin Avenue at 75 and pulled to a stop in front of Blair House 80 minutes after leaving the Calverton mountain cabin.

There was a purpose to the speed. Mr. Khrushchev had a 4 p.m. appointment at the National Press Club and had to stop first at Blair House, his headquarters in Washington. Flohr delivered the Premier at 3:29 p.m.

The way was cleared by Maryland and District of Columbia troopers with sirens wide open most of the way. Intersections were blocked. Two helicopters hovered overhead a few hundred feet along the route. —UPI.

He's Not Convinced Of Lunik

Singapore, Sept. 27. One man that Premier Khrushchev and Russian scientists will never be able to convince that Lunik II had hit the moon is Haji Ali Bin Mohamed Said Solih, religious leader of Singapore's 200,000 Moslems.

Haji Ali has carefully read all the news on the Russian rocket's flight before he declared, "That is unbelievable, impossible and sheer nonsense."

SIN
The spiritual head of Moslems in Singapore added, "Two Russians may claim that their rocket has hit the moon but personally I don't think it is true at all."

"Why should human beings be so anxious to reach the moon?" he asked.

"How can the Russians be more powerful than God? According to the Koran (Moslem bible) trying to impersonate Allah is a sin." —UPI.

VOLUNTEERS TO MOON

Moscow, Sept. 27. Many more Soviet citizens have volunteered to be the first people to fly to the moon since the success of the second Soviet moon rocket, the journal "Mirovskoye Komsomol" reported today.

The Soviet authorities were bombarded with letters containing the offers, most of them from young people. Similar offers had been made after the launching of the first Soviet moon rocket. —APF.

BEAUTY QUEEN WHO GAVE UP TITLE TELLS OF TYRANNY

Toronto, Sept. 27. A Hungarian-born beauty queen said today she abdicated as Canada's "Miss Maple Leaf" because she was "practically imprisoned" in a hotel room while waiting to sign her contest contract.

Irene Dobler, 21, denied a statement by contest officials that she had decided to drop her new title because her fiancé said "I want a wife, not a beauty queen."

Irene was crowned "Miss Maple Leaf" in Montreal on Wednesday night. She passed her crown to Hugotie Demers, of Montreal, yesterday. Hugotie will receive the $1,000 prize that goes with the title and will represent Canada in the "Miss World" contest in London in November.

STRANDED

Green-eyed Miss Dobler came home to Toronto on Friday night. She said she was stranded in her Montreal hotel room after the contest.

She said she had no money and could not get in touch with anyone until she had signed her contract.

Joseph Blasko, a Toronto real estate man and her fiancé, went to Montreal on Thursday night for a conference with Joseph A. Fardie, President of "Miss World," and Managing Director Margie Geay.

After Blasko said he did not want a wife who was a beauty queen, the officials said, Miss Dobler told Fardie, "Forget about the crown. Give it to the runner-up. I'm getting married."

DENIES

Irene denied this. She and Blasko said they were insulted during the discussion and that her schedule had been so crowded that she was not even given time to go to Sunday mass.

When she asked for permission to go to mass with Blasko, she said, she was told she could not be seen in public with him.

Irene said Miss Geay told Glasko, "You might as well forget her for a year. She's a queen now."

"Joe asked Mr. Fardie what I'd be doing for the year and asked what I'd be getting for my work," Irene said, "and Mr. Fardie said he couldn't discuss that until I'd signed the contract." —UPI.

Rift Denied

Namur, Belgium, Sept. 27. Ex-king Leopold of Belgium and his wife, Princess Liliane De Rethy, took part in the annual championships of the "Chateau Royal d'Ardenne" Golf Club here today.

Observers here believe that the news of their going on Sunday together would be taken as a denial of rumoured differences between them. —Reuter.

CONSCIOUS

Munford's wife, Camille, and another son also were at the hospital.

Dr. O'Connor said that at 1 p.m. BIDE (1700 GMT) the 51-year-old Munford was "fully conscious."

He indicated that the "worsening" resulted from a cerebral hemorrhage suffered on Thursday and not from an operation performed on Wednesday because of an accidental stab wound. —UPI.

He's Not Convinced Of Lunik

Singapore, Sept. 27. One man that Premier Khrushchev and Russian scientists will never be able to convince that Lunik II had hit the moon is Haji Ali Bin Mohamed Said Solih, religious leader of Singapore's 200,000 Moslems.

Haji Ali has carefully read all the news on the Russian rocket's flight before he declared, "That is unbelievable, impossible and sheer nonsense."

SIN
The spiritual head of Moslems in Singapore added, "Two Russians may claim that their rocket has hit the moon but personally I don't think it is true at all."

"Why should human beings be so anxious to reach the moon?" he asked.

"How can the Russians be more powerful than God? According to the Koran (Moslem bible) trying to impersonate Allah is a sin." —UPI.

RUSSIANS JAM ENGLISH LESSONS

London, Sept. 27. The BBC has been giving English lessons by radio to Russia since April and they are now being jammed.

Mr. James Monahan, controller of the BBC European Service, told a press conference that next month, they would start music programmes—including jazz and probably rock 'n' roll—as part of their Russian service.

He commented: "Here again it will be interesting to see what the jammers do about it."

FILMS

Mr. Monahan also said that, despite jamming, the BBC will soon start distributing films with foreign-language sound track for use overseas.

The first of these would be about Britain's forthcoming general election and would go to Germany and Italy, and he hoped France and Belgium.

The BBC European Service will broadcast the general election results on October 8, as they become known, in English, French, German, Italian, Russian and Czech.

The press conference was to mark the 21st birthday of the European Service, which now totals 223 hours of broadcasting every week. —China Mail Special.

Return Of Satellites

Washington, Sept. 27. The U.S. Air Force today announced that the American artificial satellite "Discoverer V" would re-enter the earth's atmosphere sometime between Monday and Wednesday next.

The "Discoverer V" was launched on Aug. 13, 1959. The satellite "Discoverer VI," likewise launched last month, will re-enter the earth's atmosphere between Oct. 10 and 12. The Air Force said.

The announcement said the two satellites would burn up from the friction of atmosphere and heat. —APF.

Typhoon Vera's Death Toll Mounts

Tokyo, Sept. 28. More than 2,600 persons were dead or missing today in the flood-soaked wreckage left by typhoon Vera which swept away 218,000 homes and two entire villages in Japan.

Authorities feared the storm's toll might rise still further when communications links with the hardest-hit areas are restored. It was the worst storm this country has suffered in recent history.

The latest unofficial count compiled from police reports said 1,187 persons were known to have been killed and 1,433 were missing. Some 4,000 were injured and more than a half million left homeless.

The typhoon swept through 38 of the country's 46 prefectures. —UPI.

Bandaranaike Saved Wife From Assassin

Colombo, Sept. 27. The last act of the late Prime Minister of Ceylon, Mr. Solomon Bandaranaike, was to save his wife from the assassin who shot him down in his own home on Friday, it was revealed today.

The new Prime Minister, Mr. Wijayananda Dahanayake, told Reuter that the assassin, after wounding Mr. Bandaranaike, made for the Police building, where he was shot.

Mr. Bandaranaike, bleeding profusely and weak after being hit by four bullets in the chest and abdomen, struck out at his attacker and knocked the revolver from his hand.

GUN FALLS
It glared on falling, hitting a glass panel separating the veranda from the drawing room, Mr. Dahanayake said.

Mr. Dahanayake, the daughter of a Kandyan chieftain, was at her husband's bedside when he died in hospital early yesterday.

She has three children. Buddhist monks have appealed to the new Prime Minister for protection because they fear attacks from people angered over the allegation, made in a Police bulletin yesterday, that Mr. Bandaranaike's assassin was a Buddhist priest.

APPEAL
Political sources said Mrs. Bandaranaike, known to the public not to wear headscarves, had Buddhist priests.

As police continued their investigations into the background of the alleged killer, the Police Inspector-General issued a statement emphasizing that there was a Buddhist priest.

"Mischievous monks are trying to spread the rumour that the person arrested in connection with the assassination is not a Buddhist priest," he said.

Bandaranaike There had been attached to an Ayurvedic (unscientific) hospital for the past three years. His appointment was due to end and he is understood to have sought Mr. Bandaranaike's intervention to ensure that it would continue.

Bandaranaike There is still in hospital where he was operated on for a bullet wound in the groin which he allegedly received when he tried to escape after the attack on the Prime Minister. His condition is understood to be not serious.

EXPANSION: a lesson from the heart of Africa

by GEORGE HUTCHINSON

UNTIL General Gordon's last months at Khartoum, before he fell to the Dervishes, the British people were scarcely aware of the Sudan.

Nor did the British Government of the day show any great understanding of the country. It was a Gladstone Government, muddling and irresolute.

With Gordon's death the Sudan really struck the national consciousness at home. "The evening of Gordon" became a cause in many an English heart.

All this seems very distant, far away from the modern world, for these events belong to a time that was massively unlike the present. Yet there must be some old people who remember them for they happened just under 75 years ago.

During the intervening three-quarters of a century, the Sudan, governed as an Anglo-Egyptian condominium, found itself a sort of colony, but with two masters instead of one.

The Egyptian partnership was more nominal than real from the start, however. British authority was paramount, and after 1924 the Egyptians had no say in administering the country.

Today, after many ups and downs, the Sudan is a republic proud of its political independence, of its growing influence in Africa, and of the respect which it has gained abroad.

What is it like, this wild land, seat of old kingdoms—Nubia,

Darfur, Sennar—and once the hunting ground of the Egyptian slave raiders?

Covering nearly a million square miles, a quarter of the area of Europe, the Sudan is a mixture of two great worlds, the African and the Arab. It is not just of one or the other: it is of both.

To generalise rather roughly, Arab and Moslem in the North, Negroid and pagan in the South, in number they are now approaching 11,000,000.

Extremes

Physically, this is a country of extremes—in climate, soil, vegetation, ways of life. After all, it cuts 1,300 miles down into the heart of Africa from the 22nd parallel to three degrees above the Equator.

Directly or indirectly, everybody in the Sudan still depends upon agriculture. In developing their cotton output the Sudanese have had the advantage of the Gezira scheme, south of Khartoum.

For a description of it, I quote a distinguished Sudanese, Mr. Mekki Abbas:

"The lessons which the Gezira provides for underdeveloped areas," he has written, "centre upon the problem of land and the tempo of expansion."

"Before the agricultural scheme was started in the Gezira the land was owned by the local inhabitants and, owing to the scanty rainfall, which averaged 15in., the highest rent was two shillings per acre per year.

"When irrigation was introduced, first by pumping schemes and later by the construction of the Sennar dam, the Government registered the land in the names of the original owners and compulsorily rented it, as it came under the scheme, at the highest pre-irrigation rates.

"The Government also restricted the area of land to the local inhabitants of the area and to the state, and fixed the maximum number of acres which could be bought by any one individual. Then the land was divided into plots of 40 acres, and these were allotted to the inhabitants as tenant cultivators.

"Original landowners were given priority in the allotment of tenancies for themselves, their families and those who used to share cultivation with them on their lands, but no landowner was allowed to have more than two tenancies in one name....

"The Sudanese, for their part, buy more from us than they do from anyone else. Last year their orders were worth £14,716,209 to British exporters, in the first half of his year

The Sudan is a mixture of two great worlds, the African and the Arab.

Imports up

Britain is the Sudan's best customer. Imports to the United Kingdom from the Sudan last year were worth £13,274,049. In the first seven months of this year they were well up to £11,051,005.

The Sudanese, for their part, buy more from us than they do from anyone else. Last year their orders were worth £14,716,209 to British exporters, in the first half of his year they were running at much the same rate. This is a valuable exchange of trade—and it is one of great promise for the future.

As new industries are established in the Sudan, the standard of living rises, there is every reason to expect an expansion of trade.

Free trade, qualified only by temporary restrictions on imports for such purposes as saving foreign exchange, is certainly one of the policies of the Aboud Government.

In this, General Aboud displays the moderation which has distinguished all his actions since he came to power 10 months ago after one of the most peaceful coups in history. —(London Express Service).

The 'Stone Age' diet has solved
'mystery' ills

The World of Science
By Peter Fairley

PUTTING on weight too fast? Feeling giddy and sick? Subject to fits of depression? Then try a "Stone Age" diet. It could be that you are allergic to some of the modern foods.

That is the theory of a Surrey doctor, who has successfully tried his "Stone Age" diet on four patients. The four cases—two "functional" disorders of a kind normally treated only by psychiatrists.

'Unmanageable' One woman had severe stomach pain; one boy, aged seven, had insomnia and was unmanageable at home. One 30-year-old man had dizziness, sickness and travelled badly. Another aged 37, was constantly tired and overcast.

All were "unmanageable" ill, yet apparently none had anything physically wrong. Then came the "Stone Age" diet. It meant cutting out all cereals, all tinned, processed and frozen foods and eating only the "basic" foods, such as meat, bacon, eggs, milk, fruit, tea and coffee.

Looking better Within a few days, the doctor reports, each patient was feeling and looking better. And the improvement has continued except when "fits" of them have eaten one of the foods to which they are allergic.

"Many theories have been put forward to account for the increase in the number of patients with neurosis and psychosomatic illness today," the doctor reports.

"Psychiatrists have persistently claimed that they have the secret, but somehow they have failed to give the GP a solution he can use.

"Why should such illness not be a manifestation of allergy to these synthetic chemicals which we are eating more and more?"

"I believe the Stone Age elimination diet to be a means not only of answering this question, but also of giving relief to thousands of people whose health has been affected in this way."

A word of warning—Consult your doctor first, before dieting.

Pig 'whisky'

A thought for whisky drinkers. In the past, to make each dram, the distillers have had to waste large quantities of the residue they call "pot ale." At best, they dried it for use as a fertiliser.

Now a firm of Scottish distillers has adapted an American idea of turning it into syrup, rich in vitamin B, and feeding it to poultry and pigs.

And it seems the animals like the left-overs as much as humans like whisky.

Geiger check Scientists believe that geiger counters may become widely used to detect early signs of cancer.

Doctors at the U.S. National Institute of Health have found that an antibiotic drug called tetracycline concentrates in rapidly growing cells such as cancer tumours.

By "bombarding" the drug with a light dose of atomic rays before injecting it, the concentration can be found by moving geiger counters over the outside of the body.

Tests on animals have proved successful. But the technique cannot be used on humans until the U.S. Food and Drug Administration has approved the drug.

I understand that the American team is hopeful that research into the technique may lead to better ways of treating cancer. But they still have a long way to go. —(London Express Service).

UNHAPPY
LOVE

by FRANCOISE SAGAN

GIRLS are fully grown at 15, often before then. Never later than 16. A girl's attitude as a woman is fixed then.

This is a fact of my life which will never change yet it is one to which the world has never become accustomed. I cannot pretend I have any solution to offer to this eternal problem.

In fact I expect that when my daughter is 16—and I mean to have children—I shall buy her a doll for her birthday just like other mothers tend to do.

Like sneezing

When I wrote "Bonjour Tristesse" my parents were most surprised. I was 18.

I suppose parents are always being "surprised" by their children. But, you see, in my case there was reason. I had just failed my examinations. They thought I was good for nothing.

Like most other parents I think they understand some part of me but not all.

Longing

When you write you are always lonely.

Characters and situations came to me as naturally as sneezing. I started "Bonjour Tristesse" as a serial read to my friends, chapter by chapter. That was five years ago. Since then I have had three other novels published. I have made a lot, but I don't understand money. But it is very handy.

Before I became famous I longed to be successful. Now I am famous I simply long to write good books.

But I have no certainties about my success. It is, I think, 90 per cent due to the fact that somehow I "fell" in the right time; the other 10 per cent is possible literary merit.

The books are best sellers in many parts of the world and I have survived my own "legend".

AUTHOR SAGAN

And yet they can still be women.

Whereas men have to do the jobs they have always done and also prove their masculinity, it is all very unfortunate for the Male Animal.

I like men to behave like men. I like them to be strong and—yes—childish. Why not? And I like them to be safe and intelligent. I like a man to protect me. But not to keep me on a lead.

Of all the things which I consider desirable—love, admiration, respect, esteem—it is love which I long for the most. I will tell you what I feel is best in me. I am tolerant and very self-controlled. And I have a good character.

Glory

But then on the other side of the penny I am terribly lazy and generally rather indifferent. And then again I can make up my mind to do what bores me. Like before my marriage telling a boy friend I was through with him.

I am afraid I became very bad at answering the telephone then.

Just broke dates. Simply because I write books about unhappy love does not mean that I live in a perpetual state of misery. There are moments of supreme happiness for me when just to exist is sheer glory.

My greatest ambition is to own a house with lots of large rooms. I want an anchor, security, and a refuge. I am not afraid to die, but whenever I catch cold I immediately get anxious.

I take life the way it comes. I look forward to the future gaily, for I am gay, though not necessarily tipsy. And I look forward without worry.

Just Kinky That

TUOUSANDS of inquiries from Americans wanting to live in Canada have prompted the Canadian Government to open immigration offices in Los Angeles and Minneapolis. "HERE comes the bride, all dressed in wool." That's the theme the knitting-wool manufacturers are plugging this autumn, for they claim that you can knit anything—even a wedding dress—if you have the patience.

To prove their point, this week they showed me a wedding ensemble that was made entirely from knitting wool—a good idea for the girl with a long engagement ahead, and plenty of time on her hands.

The dress was of white 2-ply fingering, in a lace stitch with pearl embroidery. The head-dress, a coronet, was also knitted, stiffened and then sewn with pearls and crystals. Even the bouquet was made from wool—left-over scraps in various colours were knitted up into a Victorian floral spray.

GO ON

When you've made your own dress, there is nothing to stop you going on to even more ambitious projects. You can knit your whole trousseau from wool, say the men who make it.

There is a striped shortie pyjama set, for instance, that you can turn out in a matter of hours from a few skeins of 3-ply, and if you are really enthusiastic you can add a shortie housecoat and hot water bottle cover to match.

For knitting maniacs—and there can be no other word to describe them—there are woolen dresses, made from wool, from fine red wool. Though if they shrink in the wash I bet you'll wish you'd bought some made of stretch nylon instead. There is a luxury wrap-around dressing gown, full length with a flared skirt, done by rather complicated knitting, and if your prowess has really gone to your head, you can attempt a party dress, made from wool, with a ruffled and scalloped skirt—but I warn you, you'll only get praise for that particular design from fellow-knitters, for the effect is rather homespun and clumsy.

EASIER

Easier to knit, and easier on the eye, are this season's sweaters, bulky designs in mohair or thick-knit wool. The latest idea in the knitting books, by the way, is the reversible sweater—two jumpers of identical design but different colours which are sewn together, back-to-back.

For The Elderly

APARTMENTS designed especially for elderly persons were opened for occupancy recently, with more than eight times as many applications as there were vacancies.

The B2-apartment building, designed by architect I. S. Lowenberg, for the Chicago Housing Authority, includes these features:

—Two elevators, one large enough to accommodate an ambulatory cot, so that tenants never need be compelled to walk upstairs if one lift is out of commission.

—Doorways three feet wide, large enough for a wheelchair to pass through.

—Bathroom doors which open to the outside, to eliminate the danger that the room's occupant might unintentionally barricade himself by falling against the door.

—An extra low tub, easy to step into, with a "grab bar" on the wall above to make standing up easy and safe.

—Oven and broiler at waist height in the kitchen wall, to eliminate stooping.

—Kitchen cabinets placed low enough to eliminate extreme reaching.

CHILDREN'S CORNER

Willy's New Business

—He Sews Clothes for All the Animals—

By MAX TRELL

"I HEAR" Chirpe Sparrow said, "that Willy Toad has just gone into a new business."

Knarf and Hanid, the Shadows with the Turned-About Names, both exclaimed: "What new business?"

"I don't know exactly," said Chirpe Sparrow. "All I know is that he has a sign hanging from the side of a rock on the other side of the Pine Tree Grove."

Looking For Willy

A few minutes later, Knarf and Hanid were running through Pine Tree Grove looking for Willy Toad.

"Look! There's the rock," cried Hanid.

Sure enough, they found a sign attached to a stick stuck in a crack in the rock.

The sign read: WILL TOAD TAILOR

"Hi, there!" said Willy's voice. "Would you like some new clothes made? Come right in!"

Found Him

At first Knarf and Hanid couldn't see where Willy's voice was coming from. But finally they discovered him on the other side of the rock where a large branch made a sort of roof.

Willy was sitting on a bed of moss. His legs were crossed under him. He was sewing a piece of red cloth with a needle. He was wearing gold-rimmed spectacles.

"Yes," said Willy, after Knarf and Hanid had said how surprised they were to find that he was in the tailoring business, "being a tailor is a very useful business. Everybody has to have clothes made."

A Red Vest

"Now take this red vest that I'm sewing now."

"Who is it for?" Hanid asked.

"It's for a Robin," Willy said. "And as soon as I finish making this red vest, I've got all those other things to work on."

Willy pointed toward a rock on which a great many different-coloured garments were hanging. Willy went over to explain what each of the garments was. "Now take this blue dress. It's for Miss Bluebird. And here's something particularly beautiful."

Willy held up a long black and golden veil.

"It's a bathrobe for a Butterfly," he said. "She gets up very early in the morning and it's sometimes quite cool. This silk bathrobe will keep her warm."

"What's that black coat? Who's it for?" Knarf wanted to know.

"That black coat's for Crow," said Willy. "Nobody else would wear a thing like that."

Other Clothes

Willy showed Knarf and Hanid a pair of green pants for a Grasshopper, a gray jacket for a Squirrel, a yellow and black frock for Bumble Bee, a tiny fawn-coloured coat for a Mouse and a brown nightgown for Owl.

Willy was about to push the rack away when Hanid said:

"Wait a minute, Willy, you didn't show us that thing at the end of the rack."

Oh, that's nothing," said Willy.

Like Underwear

"But it is something!" said Hanid. "It looks like a long pair of yellow underwear with brown and black and yellow designs."

"Yes," said Willy, after Knarf and Hanid had said how surprised they were to find that he was in the tailoring business, "being a tailor is a very useful business. Everybody has to have clothes made."

"Now take this red vest that I'm sewing now."

"Who is it for?" Hanid asked.

"It's for a Robin," Willy said. "And as soon as I finish making this red vest, I've got all those other things to work on."

Willy pointed toward a rock on which a great many different-coloured garments were hanging. Willy went over to Willy was sitting on a bed of moss, sewing on red cloth.

"Who's it for?" asked Knarf. "For me," said Willy. "Even a tailor can make things for himself sometimes, can't he?"

Willy tried hard to convince Knarf and Hanid that they should let him make some kind of clothes for them.

"How about a nice blue and gold and black and red Peacock coat for you, Knarf? And how about a long red and green Butterfly dress for you, Hanid?"

But Knarf and Hanid both thanked Willy very much and told him they had enough clothes.

"The next time we need anything really beautiful," said Hanid, "we'll be sure to come to you, Willy, and ask you to make it."

"I hope I'm still in the tailoring business at that time," said Willy.

Rupert and the Outlaws—37

The big poppy is evidently still on the scene, and when again as Rupert turns to tackle the awkward cleft with the help of a small tree growing out of a rock. "This is no place for a dog," says the little bear. "It may be too difficult even for me." Suddenly they both give a start and pause at the sound of a weak voice not far away. "He's there!" gasps Rupert, and, struggling on, he reaches safety. Next minute he is peering into a wide cleft at the top of the cliff.

For the knit-it-yourself bride, this wedding dress is made from 2-ply wool in a lace stitch. The headdress and bouquet are also made from wool.

My prize for the top twinst goes to a cardigan in prussian blue with a knitted white lining splattered with Fair Isle roses. It is teamed with a white rose-patterned sweater, also knitted, and you can make a blue skirt too, to turn it into a suit.

However, much I admire these monuments to the skill and patience of the home knitter, I do wish the manufacturers would concentrate less on novelty yarns and patterns, and more on finding a way to stop the stuff from shrinking!

CRAZY hats are in the news this week: In London sales girls and secretaries are supping up the latest idea in fancy head-wear—wigs made from thick knitting wool to look like grey hair scraped back into a bun. Fine, if you're young enough not to mind looking like a grey-haired old lady.

In Paris they're selling pill-box hats so small that they can actually be used as pill boxes. The lid opens to reveal a silk-lined compartment big enough to take a week's supply of vitamin pills.

JACOBY on BRIDGE

THE moment that he hears his partner's no-trump opening North wants to be in a hurry game.

If North plays four hearts he is not likely to make his contract. East has an automatic spade lead and eventually West will get two spades and either a diamond or a club while East is sure to make his king of trumps.

If South plays four hearts he has a chance to make his contract. Assume the best defence which is a trump lead. South goes up with dummy's ace, plays the jack of clubs and lets it ride. West wins but he has no way to reach his partner.

A—Bid one no-trump. With eight points you are too strong to pass and too weak to bid two clubs.

TODAY'S QUESTION Your partner jumps to three hearts. What do you do now? Answer Tomorrow

How does South get to play hearts? Easy enough! He uses the Jacoby transfer bid or the Texas convention. In the Texas convention the bid of four diamonds demands that the no-trump bidder go to four hearts. In the JTB either a two-diamond or four-diamond bid demands a heart bid by the opener.

This North hand calls for the use of the four-diamond bid since North knows exactly where he wants to land and the JTB and Texas convention are the same.

South China 2. Police 3. GOOD 'EAVENS, EVANS

Newcomer's Blockbuster Puts Police On Road To Fine Victory

By I. M. MacTAVISH

Well done, the Police. At the sparsely filled Hongkong Stadium yesterday they sent South China, the triple champions, crumbling to defeat by three goals to two. Make no bones about it they thoroughly deserved their victory.

The result brought a sense of realism to Colony football. It showed that Boundary Street's boys in blue are going to be a hard team to beat and it also underlined in the most graphic way that this South China side without Yiu Cheuk-yin is like a ship without a rudder.

Don't get any ideas that this was a great game. Frankly it wasn't. There was far too much needless play from both teams. From the Police point of view it was a grand morale-boosting occasion and they are entitled to nothing but praise for the way they defended their advantage once they had established it.

Nevertheless the Police defence made far too many careless and often thoughtless errors to inspire lasting confidence in their loyal followers. Loose kicking, inaccurate passing, poor marking and unreliable covering were all there at different times. Frequently it was only courageous last-ditch neck-or-nothing recoveries, and the inability of South China to snuff up their chances, that saved the day.

Spirited

However, this Police side has plenty to commend it. There is an abundance of spirit, a bigger than usual ration of dogged determination and if there is more than a suspicion of lunacy about the defence there is also a healthy threat in the forward line. No opposing defence will be able to rest on its laurels when the boys in blue—who yesterday played in white—are in action.

South China found this to be true. Only the most rabid Curlew Hill enthusiasts could find anything encouraging in the champions' own showing. There was indeed a pace-ster, lustreless, three-hour performance.

If they had any playing plan I failed to detect it. It was surely the game's best-kept secret, and that includes the South China players themselves.

When the police pressure was being applied, the area in front of the champions' goal presented a scene of as many defensive mistakes as were witnessed at the other end and near the finish we even had the strange sight of goalkeeper Lau Kin-cheung rolling the ball straight to the feet of unmarked Roy Moss. Fortunately for Lau the big fellow was too surprised to turn his golden opportunity to account.

And now what about the individual players? Let's take the winners first. Let's take the goalkeeper Kwok Man-sum was a strange mixture of magnificence and mediocrity. He pulled off some brilliant saves yet, in the early stages particularly, he misjudged time and again and he was very lucky not to have one or two of his slips chalked up against him.

Full-backs Ngan Chun-sing and Cheng Wing-king settled down after a very shaky start. They also survived a sticky patch just before the interval but it was really in the wing half positions that the police victory was fashioned.

Ng Cheuk-lau and Tsang Wah-tai, playing with a refreshing regard for the laws of the game—faced up to the famous Ho Cheung-yau and Wong Chi-keung combination without batting an eyelid. His tackling was hard but absolutely fair and he took the sting out of the only really important part of South China's front rank.

Kung Wah-kit had a good day at centre-half and in the closing stages he worked like a Trojan to defend the lead which his side had so worthily established.

Twinkling Footwork

The Police forward line was no great shakes but it had enough punch and personality to make it attractive in action. The eyes of the crowd were quickly on Evans, the former Army player who was making his debut in Police colours. The tall inside-right secured a real corner of a goal and caught the fancy of the fans with his twinkling footwork. There seems to be a bright future ahead in colony football for this young Police officer.

He is still a long way from being match-fit but even in the few minutes he has been back in Hongkong he has shown himself to be a valuable addition to the Police playing staff. Not unexpectedly he faded out of the game for long periods and if he is to prove his full worth to the side he will have to improve his catching and clearing and fight for the ball with greater determination than he did yesterday.

Moss is still Moss. Bigger than ever, lumbering, cumbersome, threatening and never really subdued, always liable to knock a defence back off its heels, a grand man to have on your side.

The Police winners Ng Cheung-yau and Tsang Wah-tai never quite hit it off and it was largely the game before goal-conscious Mike Wing-hung found the ball running to his liking.

Sorry Picture

In many ways South China presented a sorry picture. Their forward line is sadly unbalanced and unless they can find an acceptable solution to their inside-left problem they are going to have some uncomfortable times.

Last season their shaky defence was face-saved by the power of the goal-enriching forwards. Now things have changed and yesterday the whole side looked a thing of shreds and tatters. Kwok Kam-hung, Luk Tak-hay, Lau Yee-his indiscretion apart—Ho Cheung-yau and in patches Wong Chi-keung and Mok Cheun-wah were the only ones who looked South China class. For the rest the least said is the best.

The turf at the Hongkong Stadium looked a picture as play got underway. The sparse crowd enjoyed early thrills as both defences showed touches of the ultra. The Police almost took a quick lead when Lau Chi-ping failed to make a successful tackle and in the next ten minutes they might have lost a couple of goals at the other end through bad covering.

Then came the first big thrill and what a thrill! South China's half-backs hesitated in the face of a Police attack and even when the ball went to Evans they showed little appreciation of the danger ahead.

Suddenly the newcomer sprang to life. He beat three opponents "on-a-ten-cent-piece" and from about twenty-five yards sent a magnificent left foot drive screaming on its way to the back of the net. A real corker... as they say.

Two minutes later Evans was at it again. A delightful dribble took him into the South China penalty area where Lau Yee-his typical style sent him sprawling. A penalty if ever there was one and Kung Wah-kit smacked the spot kick into the net to put his side two up.

At this stage South China made their first real effort to improve the situation but it was not until the 30th minute that they got their reward and even then it was only a series of defensive errors that gave lanky Lee Tak-wai his chance to scramble the ball home and pull the score back to 2-1.

Four minutes before the interval the police restored their two goals lead. It started away out on the left wing interval the police restored Lee King-sang lighted the ball for the far post, Ng Cheung-yau nodded it back, and Moss dived headlong to head the ball wide of Lau Kin-cheung's clawing fingers and into the net.

Unlucky

The second half was one long unrelenting struggle by South China to improve their position and an equally resolute fight by the Police to protect their lead. South China were unlucky when a fine shot from Mok Cheun-wah beat the defence only to hit the far post. This was cancelled out when Good shots by Moss and Evans carried just wide at the other end.

In the last minute of play Ho Cheung-yau bundled in his side's second counter. Once again in the hard-pressed Police defenders must shoulder the blame for a goal that should never have been lost.

VERDICT: A result that should give a real lift to the season. The Police were full value for their win and in Evans they have a very promising young player who when fully tuned up will worry many a defence. South China were too bad to be true and it was rather sad to see Ho Cheung-yau look ineffectively for Yiu Cheuk-yin only to realize too late that his erstwhile partner was no longer there.

Entertaining fare... even if there was little classic soccer well done... Police.

CLUB TAKE ON FORSGATE'S XV TONIGHT IN FIRST MATCH OF RUGBY SEASON

By PAK LO

This evening the rugby season officially begins with the annual game between the Club "A" XV, and a specially selected XV. Tonight's selected XV is known as Forsgate's XV, in honour of one of the Club stalwarts and ex-Captains who gave up the game a few years ago.

This is always a good game for it puts the Club, when they are still almost unaffected by injuries against a top notch XV at an early stage and gives the Club and their supporters an idea of what they can expect for the rest of the season.

Tonight's game is on the Club ground and will be the first floodlit game of many this season. It is timed to start at 7.15 p.m.

The Club so far in their trials have not looked like a powerful team they were last season, but they are sure to improve once the team is decided upon and they have a chance to play a few games together.

Already the Club have suffered their first injury with Steven being unable to play due to an ankle injury received in a practice game. A hokey match, Moss takes his place at lock.

On paper the Club have a good pack, which has plenty of go in the loose, but their three halves have still to show their best movements, their handling so far being indifferent. Again this is bound to improve, and will have to in this match. If they are going to win for they have against them a very strong attacking three line.

Forsgate's pack is not so strong, though they have the services of "Spike" Wain in the second row to help them on.

Both XV's have gone on record as having every intention of playing an open game throughout, and if this comes about then fans should see an excellent game. Last season most teams played an open game and this definitely improved both their scoring and spectator interest and should do so again tonight.

Overall the Club look likely to lose this match by a narrow margin, but at this stage of the season anything can happen and

Emerson Scores Biggest Win Of His Career

Los Angeles, Sept. 27.

Australia's Roy Emerson, best known for his doubles play, today scored the Biggest win of his tennis career when he defeated Ramanathan Krishnan of India, 6-3, 4-6, 6-0, 6-4, in the final of the 33rd annual Pacific Southwest international tournament.

Emerson, fourth-seeded foreign entry, had upset his doubles partner and top-seeded Neale Fraser yesterday to get into the final round with the Indian star.

Emerson took a 3-0 lead before Krishnan could take a game. He held his advantage to run out the set. In the second set, the Australian broke service in the first game at love. But Krishnan broke back in the fourth game and broke again in the 10th to take the game.

Emerson took his 6-0 set with steady but brilliant play. He broke service in the first game of the fourth set and regained the advantage to win the match. The Hindu star made frequent errors on easy shots. The Australian showed a bigger serve to complete his advantage. —UPI.

Teams

Club "A": Lochrie, Laville, Watson, Johnston, D'Eau, Wigget, Digby-Bennet, Williams, King, Whiteley, Ross, Farquharson, Penning, Uttley, Caragell.

HMG Forsgate's XV: Lloyd, Brown, Martindale, Moss, Poyner, Black, Brock, Meehan, Croucher, Kilvert, Walker, Winn, Roberts, Dixon, Leonard.

Primera Is Britain's Main Hope In The Triomphe

By JOHN RICKMAN

London. As the St Leger winner Cantelo has jarred a leg and will not now go to Longchamps this Sunday for the Prix de l'Arc de Triomphe, England is left with one representative, Primera, in this £40,000 race.

Strictly speaking she has two, because Primera will be ridden by Lester Piggott, of the well-proved temperament for these international races.

This time, the Arc de Triomphe will be observed not only by the usual huge crowd, including many British visitors, but by a Big Brother in most acceptable form—the film patrol camera.

Any excess of verve by horse or jockey during the race will be pictorially recorded for the stewards to scrutinise shortly after the race. It has already shown them a thing or two.

We may have had better horses than Primera to run for us in this 2½-mile international event, but it is impossible to deny that Mr Stan Joel's five-year-old has improved this year.

To Be Retired

Ballymoos, who landed the Ebor-Triomphe double last year, could not have won the York race much more easily than Primera did last month. Among those who will probably line up with Primera are unbeaten Harbinger, the French Derby winner, who scored again last weekend; the Ascot Gold Cup winner, Wallaby II; and the Italian crack Ensur.

Charles Elsey, trainer of Cantelo, said "that there was 'nothing much wrong' with Mr William Hill's filly.

He added, however: "I do not expect she will race again." Cantelo won all her five races as a two-year-old. This season's other prizes included the Chesham Oaks and the Ribblesdale Stakes at Royal Ascot. Her misfortune was to be foaled in the same year as Paddy Millie, to whom she ran second in the Oaks.

SPURS COULD SET PATTERN FOR ENGLAND COME-BACK

SAYS TOM FINNEY

(Of Preston and England)

I don't enjoy being concussed. And the head I took away from White Hart Lane the other day was more painful than most.

But despite that and the fact Spurs beat us 5-1, this wasn't a match I wished to forget. For the half that I saw raised my hopes in the future of English football.

I believe that Spurs—with their classic style—could be the club to replace the recent on ball control in recent years, the basic skills have been forgotten in the struggle for League and Cup. Pure football has become undishonourable, and most of the successful sides have relied upon a combination of speed and determination.

Yet this I am sure will never help us in the battle for international supremacy. Ball-playing sides such as France and Brazil have shown conclusively that there is only one way to the top in present-day world football.

COLOURFUL SPURS

Spurs, currently leading the League, have the colour and the ability to drum this lesson home.

It is, of course, early days yet, but I feel there is a very real possibility of the club recapturing its pre-eminence of 10 years ago.

I would couple that side with the 1958-7 Manchester United as the most attractive combination in post-war football.

Do you remember the line-up? Ted Ditchburn (England), Alf Ramsey (England), Arthur Willis (England), Bill Nicholson (England), Harry Clarke (England), Ronnie Burgess (Wales), Sonny Walters, Les Bence, Len Duquemin, Eddie Bailey (England), Les Medley.

They were the great crowd-pullers of the day and it is fitting that the club today is led by one of that band, Bill Nicholson. I have a high admiration for Bill both as a player and official and was as deeply impressed by his handling of England's World Cup squad in Gothenburg last year.

He whipped the team into terrific shape and although his training methods were tough, I never heard anyone complain.

LOYALTY For his enthusiasm is infectious and he has that vital quality of being able to inspire loyalty in his players. Maybe they remember the example he set in his own playing days.

He was a human dynamo and one of the most tireless workers I've ever seen. There was no harder worker in the game, but typically, there was no fairer. Under his command today, he has the most expensive line-up of players in present-day British football.

It is a side gathered from far and wide with men such as Irish skipper Danny Blanchflower, the Scots Bill Brown and Dave Mackay, the Welsh trio of Mel Hopkins, Terry Medwin and Cliff Jones, not forgetting Tony March recently returned from Turin.

Having played on the left wing myself, I am particularly interested in Cliff Jones—a very good player who could one day be a great one.

I know Mackay who plays behind him considers him the best left wing in Europe. And although I wouldn't go all the way along with that statement, I'd say that one day he might well be just that.

STILL YOUNG For Cliff is something of a paradox. He has little chance of planning out his moves and I suspect that he could use his speed to better advantage by more frequent change of pace.

If he does this, I am sure that many defences would have good reason to regret the change. Another player bound to cast a big shadow this season is Dave Mackay, an attacking wing-half of the highest calibre.

I remember that Matt Busby once said he'd like Mackay at Old Trafford and he probably wants him even more today.

Scots have played a big part in English football during recent seasons... men such as Bobby Collins at Everton, Willie Fernie at Middlesbrough and Tommy Docherty at Arsenal have helped to give their clubs a new look.

SPURS CUP THREAT Mackay could perhaps play a similar role at White Hart Lane. Just what lies ahead for Spurs this season? Their lead is slender and there is a long, long way to go.

I certainly wouldn't like to make any predictions about their championship chances at this stage. But from my brief—somewhat dashed—impression of them, I would say this.

Their style of play will write a colourful page in the months ahead. And their current form is no flash of summer lightning. They are a threat to be reckoned with.

Disappointing Crucial Matches In

Weekend Softball CHEYENNES GO DOWN TO DODGERS AND SOUTH CHINA BY BIG MARGINS

By OLLY VAS

Both the 'crucial' games in the weekend softball matches proved to be disappointing affairs as the two Cheyenne teams suffered humiliating defeats at the hands of the Dodgers and the South China A.A. in the Men's Junior and the Ladies' leagues respectively.

Fred Diesta's Dodgers were comfortable winners in the first Cheyenne rout by 12 runs to two and Robert Remedios' girls then went on to spoil his Sunday completely by being soundly trounced 4-19 by the visitors from Caroline Hill.

The Pandas registered win number two at the expense of the Stardusts by taking a 13-11 decision. Lionel Doyaram's progress put up, unexpectedly still, and are to be complimented for their fine showing.

Tied For First

But it was just the other way around for the servicemen from Shatin, the Austers. The Giants tallied 27 times and the best opposition could do was to score twice. By virtue of their victories the Pandas and the Giants are now tied for first place at the head of the Junior League table.

Diesta's boys were tipped to win their vital opening game against the Cheyennes and win they did in no uncertain manner. If they maintain the same form for the rest of the season they will certainly embarrass me for having picked the Cheyennes to end up as the 1959/60 Junior champions.

Butting first the Cheyennes tallied the opening run of the game through Eric Remedios who scored on a single to left field by Thomas Chud. Then Chud got tagged out on an attempted steal to second. Lester Wu popped up for out number two. Muniz hit safely to get on base after which Michael Figueira singled a walk off Dodger pitcher Baker Hussain. Now in trouble with a capital "T" the Dodgers' Huber Morison saved the day for his side with a beautiful running catch of a fly ball which came off the bat of Vic Bellito. The American boy certainly earned the sustained applause which greeted this fine bit of fielding that closed the first half of this inning with the Cheyennes ahead 1-0.

Costly Errors

In their turn at bat the Dodgers tied it at one-all when the Cheyenne infield elected to play Bert Diesta at first as Kinson Leung made the home plate with the equalizer. Cheyenne shortstop Wu then made two costly holding errors to allow two more runs to be scored. Then with two down Antonio Diesta lofted a long ball to left and Norden scored. The board now read Dodgers 4, Cheyennes 1.

Danny To Manage Ireland

Danny Blanchflower will be in charge of Ireland's training and planning for their match against Scotland at Belfast on October 3.

He takes over for this match from Peter Doherty, who asked to be excused the duties of team manager because of the plight of his own club, Bristol City, who are bottom of Division II.

Blanchflower is also captain of Ireland's team, which is as follows:

Gregg (Manchester United); Keith (Newcastle); McMichael (Newcastle); Bligh (Tottenham); Cunningham (Leicester); Peacock (Celtic); Bligham (Luton); Cuth (Leeds); Dougan (Blackburn); McIlroy (Burnley); McFarland (Aston Villa).

It will be Dougan's first home international, though he played in one World Cup game.

RECOVERING

The surgeon's knife has taken away a cartilage from the left knee of £42,000 Mel Charles.

Though Mel is making a satisfactory recovery at the Royal National Orthopaedic Hospital in London, he will miss Wales matches against England on October 17 and Scotland on November 4.

Arsenal expect him to be out of the game for six to eight weeks.

Bassey Is Happier But Still Cannot Make Up His Mind

By ALAN MANLEY

London. Hogan Bassey, former world featherweight champion who failed to regain his title last month when he retired against Davey Moore in Los Angeles, is not giving up his boxer's licence.

Immediately after the Los Angeles fight Bassey's manager, George Biddle, suggested that the time had come for the Nigerian to retire.

Bassey could not make up his mind. Last week, after specialists in Liverpool had examined the eye which took such a beating in America, he had still not decided.

Encouraging

"Mr Biddle and I are extremely pleased with the doctors' report, and there is no need to make any hurried decision about the future," he said.

His manager described the examination as "most satisfactory," and Hogan's progress as "distinctly encouraging."

New York Giants Snatch Thrilling American Football Win Over Rams

Los Angeles, Sept. 27.

Pat Summerall kicked an 18-yard field goal in the last two minutes of play last night to give the New York Giants a 23-21 come-from-behind American football victory over the Los Angeles Rams before a crowd of 71,297.

The Rams all but pulled it out in the last 15 seconds but Jack Morris' 42-yard field goal attempt was barely wide to the left. The height and distance were perfect.

Stood Out

It was a brutally rugged game throughout which saw several players ejected for over-enthusiastic camaraderie.

While the game was replete with long runs and sensational pass receptions, it was the line play that stood out.

However, Chuck Conery, Giant signal-caller, managed to complete 21 out of 31 pass attempts for one touchdown and 321 yards. Rams' passer Bill Wade was almost as effective until he left midway in the third period with an injured leg. He completed 14 out of 20 for 204 yards and two touchdowns.

The Rams began to chip away at the Giant's lead late in the second period when Otis Nelson capped a 71-yard drive with a 2-yard touchdown plunge.

They scored twice again, both in the third period, on Wade's two touchdown passes — an 8-yard toss to full-back Joe Maroon and a 43-yard kick to Del Shofner.

Scored Twice

The Giants jumped to a commanding 17-0 lead midway in the second period on the first of Summerall's three field goals and two touchdowns. They came on a 68-yard pass from Conery to big Bob Schnelker and a one-yard plunge by half-back Frank Gifford.

Going into the fourth quarter, they held a 27-17 edge, but the Giants closed the margin to a single point when Summerall kicked his second field goal — good for 14 yards — and then went ahead for keeps with one minute, 58 seconds to play with Summerall's third field goal — a straightaway kick of 18 yards — UPI.

South Africa Suggests Four-Day Test Matches Against England

Johannesburg, Sept. 27.

Test matches against the touring South African cricket team in England next year may be limited to 29 hours over four days with an extra day available for time lost through rain.

The South African Board of Cricket Control decided at the weekend to put this before the MCC, who as hosts, will make the final decision.

Bradley Nourse, 49-year-old former South African captain, will be manager of the 15-member Springbok team.

The names of the team, which leave here on April 10 and return on September 15, are expected to be announced in February.

South Africa decided to increase the number of their selectors from three to five, though Nourse will not be one of them. The selectors are "Nobby" Ralph Conner, Alan Melville, Lindsay Tuckett, Robert Wooler and John Lindsay.

Bradley Nourse, 49-year-old former South African captain, will be manager of the 15-member Springbok team.

The names of the team, which leave here on April 10 and return on September 15, are expected to be announced in February.

Dockyard Tug Leaves Soon For New Duties

By A CHINA MAIL REPORTER

A tugboat which has been serving under the Blue Ensign for the last 13 years, will leave on a 10,000-mile trip on Wednesday for Falmouth to join a fleet of tugs there.

Capt. E. G. Newton, Shore Superintendent of the Falmouth Tugboat Company, will accompany the vessel on its longest trip since 1946.

The tug is at present still registered as "Fluunt", but once it joins Falmouth Tugboat, she will be re-named "St. Merryn".

Built in Canada
The 233-ton "Fluunt" was built in Canada in 1945, and arrived here just after the liberation. Since then she has been based in Hongkong with the Royal Navy. She was recently bought by Falmouth Tugboat, to join their seven other tugs.

Capt. Newton, who arrived here a month ago to help prepare the "Fluunt" for her long 45-day journey back, has been in the Colony many times. He first came here in 1932 and between then and the war, was in and out of the Colony both with Main Line ships and P & O liners.

The other 14 members of the crew, all Cornishmen, flew into the Colony on Sept. 18. The "Fluunt", is now in Talkoo Dock ready to leave on her long voyage back to the UK.

Electricity Commission Of Inquiry: First Day's Proceedings

The Commission will then call such further witnesses, and will require the production of such further documents, as it may consider necessary or desirable for the purpose of inquiring into the matters referred to in its terms of reference.

After examination by the Commission of witnesses called by the Commission, the Commission may, in its discretion, put such further questions to such witnesses as it may be requested to do by represented parties.

Final Address

The Commission may in its discretion allow parties to call rebutting evidence.

After the conclusion of the evidence, each party will be given the opportunity to make a final address to the Commission. The order of addresses will follow the order of presentation of cases.

After the conclusion of the final addresses, the public hearing will be terminated.

During the course of the inquiry the Legal Adviser will have the right to put such questions to parties and witnesses, and to make such interventions in the proceedings, as he may consider necessary from time to time in order to ascertain the legal issues, and to advise the Commission accordingly.

More than 60 people representing the two electricity supply companies and various groups and associations as consumers attended the preliminary hearing this morning. The Commission members are Mr. J. Mould, Chairman, Mr. C. J. M. Bennett and Mr. D. H. Rutherford. Mr. D. F. O. Mayne, Solicitor General, is the legal adviser to the Commission.

Representation

The hearing commenced with the reading of the appointments of the Commissioners and the legal advisers by the Secretary to the Commission, Mr. David Whitelegge.

Mr. Whitelegge then read the various sections of the Commission's Powers Ordinance for general information. The nomination of representatives then began.

The China Light and Power Company is legally represented by Mr. D. A. L. Wright, on the instruction of Messrs Lo and Lo.

Those who will be called upon to address the Commission or answer any inquiries will be Mr. Lawrence Kadoorie, Chairman of the Board of Directors, Mr. C. F. Wood, Manager, Mr. A. M. Onslow, Secretary and Chief Accountant, and Mr. E. Laufer, Solicitor.

New Territories

The Hongkong Electric Company is also represented by Mr. Wright, on the instruction of Messrs Johnson Stokes and Master, and speaking for the company will be Mr. W. Stoker, General Manager.

The District Commissioner, New Territories, Mr. D. R. Holmes, told the Commission that he had been asked by the rural communities and members of similar bodies of the New Territories to transmit certain representations for consideration by the Commission.

Their representations which related to rural electricity supply had been embodied in a single submission which had been forwarded to the Commission.

These committees and members represented themselves as consumers or would-be consumers of electricity and he, Mr. Holmes, spoke on their behalf and wished to take part in the proceedings.

Movie Studios

Mr. C. H. Barber appeared on his own behalf and as nominee for the motion picture studios which had submitted their representations as electricity consumers. He told the Commission that directors and managers of various studios would also appear before the Commission.

The Hongkong Cotton Spinners Association was legally represented by Mr. R. F. G. Dornell, of Messrs Brutton and Co. Speaking for the Association will be the Acting Chairman, Mr. S. D. Woo, and the Secretary, Mr. C. T. Chiu.

Mr. W. S. Edwards said he was appearing in a personal capacity in a matter which he hoped would be in public interest, but he was not representing anyone.

Asked whether he wished to take part in the proceedings, Mr. Edwards replied "Depending on whether my representation will be accepted, I am not directly a consumer and I am not a shareholder in either company. Of course I am an indirect consumer. But there are certain matters which I think should be brought to the notice of the Commission, as a matter of personal and public interest."

The Chairman repeated the question and Mr. Edwards said he did wish to take part in the proceedings.

Mr. H. H. Cheong, representative of the Hongkong Civic Association said he wished to participate together with Mr. W. I. Cheung from the point of view of public policy.

Big List

Representative of the Reform Club of Hongkong, Mr. P. C. Woo, applied to watch the proceedings only. He said the Reform Club who had members who were consumers or shareholders of both companies, took a neutral attitude.

Others who applied to take part were Mr. Kwok Bun, who with Mr. Percy Chen, will be representing the Hongkong Chinese Reform Association; Dr. S. N. Chiu, representing the working party of the Federation of Hongkong Industries; Mr. H. K. Chang and Mr. Chai Ching, representing the China Dyeing Works; Mr. K. S. Lo representing the Hongkong Soya Bean Products Ltd. and together with Mr. Tse Yu-chuen, Mr. Peking Wong, Mr. Solomon Hui, Mr. Ng Por-bai, representing the Hongkong and Kowloon Kaitong Welfare Association.

CMA Would Help Industry In Singapore

Singapore, Sept. 27. Mr. Yan Man Leung, leader of a Hongkong trade delegation, said today that the Colony would be "willing to provide the technical know-how in setting up factories here."

Mr. Yan and the other 34 members of his delegation are here organizing a trade exhibition sponsored by the Chinese Manufacturers Association of Hongkong.

Industrial developments in Singapore, Mr. Yan said, had been hampered largely due to lack of skilled labour than capital.

He said there were great possibilities in Malaya for light industries such as plastic and shoe-making.

Hongkong businessmen, he added, were "very keen to invest here in co-operation with local capital."—Reuters.

ing: Mr. Robert Der and Mr. K. S. Poon representing the Kowloon Chamber of Commerce; Mr. H. L. Hu instructed by P. L. Lam and Co., representing the Chinese Manufacturers Association; and the Tuen Wan Manufacturers Association; Mr. Hui Chang-shing and Mr. Chiu Oi-wah representing the Chinese General Chamber of Commerce; Mr. Lam Kan-sing and Mr. Li Fook-chor representing the Hongkong Garment Manufacturers Union; Mr. E. Hui representing the Hongkong and Kowloon Theatres Association; Mr. S. K. Yang representing the Hongkong Plastics Manufacturers Association; Mr. Ho Hong-ming representing the Chinese Chamber of Commerce, Kowloon; Mr. Ho Chak-sang, representing the Hongkong Restaurant and Eating-house Association; and Mr. Leo d'Almeida QC, instructed by Messrs d'Almeida and Mason, representing Sir Elly Kadoorie and Sons, shareholders of both electric companies.

Absentees

Three absentees who were not present to identify their representations were Mr. Tam Lam-chiu for the Po Yick Association; Mr. E. R. Childie; and the Local Printing Press Ltd.

When no other person applied to take part in the proceedings, the Chairman, Mr. Mould, announced that others who had not sent in any written representation or those who wished to make supplementary ones may do so on or before October 6 and the parties would be allowed only to address the Commission on those submissions they had sent in.

After the three members of the Commission had made their declarations that they had no interests in the two power companies, the Chairman explained the objects of the Commission and its activities and adjourned further hearing until October 6 at 10 a.m.

Lloyds Bank Director Leaving

Sir Patrick Hamilton, a director of Lloyds Bank, and Lady Hamilton, will be leaving here for Bangkok this afternoon by plane.

Sir Patrick, who is on a 99-day business tour of the Far East, is on a tour of the Far East prior to the introduction of his airline's new Boeing 707 jet aircraft on the London-Sydney route. He is also studying the pattern of service of Far Eastern routes.

Leaving on the same plane for New Delhi will be Mr. C. O. Turner, a chief executive of Qantas who is on a tour of the Far East prior to the introduction of his airline's new Boeing 707 jet aircraft on the London-Sydney route. He is also studying the pattern of service of Far Eastern routes.

He said the new building would be a six-story building to cost $100,000 to be erected on the site of a 35-year-old, 3-story house, at 23, Tung Choi Street, Kowloon, exemption for which was granted this morning by the tenancy tribunal.

The building will take slightly less than a year to complete, and will provide domestic accommodation only.

Compensation totalling $18,620 was awarded to the eight opponents of the application.

The applicants were Mr. Chan So, of 4, Hok Sze Tuen, ground floor, (Hongkong); Mr. Chan So will erect the new building jointly with the owner of 21, Tung Choi Street.

The tribunal consisted of Mr. J. E. Burgess (president), Mr. D. W. Skinner and Mr. A. E. Xavier.

Mr C. B. Burgess Visits Cape Collinson Centre

The Officer Administering the Government, Mr. C. B. Burgess, visited the Prisons Department this morning. Mr. Burgess was accompanied on his two-hour inspection tour by the Commissioner of Prisons, Mr. C. J. Norman.

He first visited Stanley Prison, where he saw the Reception Office, Punishment Block, Industries Section, Kitchen and Hospital.

Later Mr. Burgess went to the Cape Collinson Training Centre at Little Sai Wan, where he watched a display by the Centre's Corps of Drums and saw boys in the classrooms and the vocational training workshops.

'Typhoon Passed Over My House' HK Resident Recalls

A resident who was here with his family at the time the 1937 typhoon hit Hongkong — recounted in Saturday's China Mail by feature writer Andrew Sloan — recalls that the centre of the storm passed over his house in the Mt. Cameron area.

"As far as I can remember the wind increased seriously at about 10.30 p.m. It became so bad that I decided to take the family — my wife and three children — into the nursery bathroom for safety."

"Even in the house we could feel the pressure in our ears."

"It was just as well we did move into the bathroom because something hit one of the windows, and blew all of the furniture across the room, and blew out all of the other windows in the house. The mess it caused was terrific."

"The floors were flooded, there was debris all over the place, but luckily it was a well-built house, and the damage was only superficial."

"The five of us were stuck in the bathroom all night, and it was lucky we took some mattresses with us."

"At about 2 a.m. there was a dead calm, which may have been when the centre of the storm passed over the house. Five minutes later the storm began again."

"Looking through the house I found a curtain had been forced through the cracks of the door by the force of the wind."

"In my bedroom I found a meat skewer in one of my slippers, and an unbroken bird's egg in the bed."

NO IDENTIFICATION
He saw a constable crossing Garden Road and handed him the wallet. The constable took out a notebook and asked him to write down his name and address. The constable put the wallet in his pocket and went away.

At an identification parade two days later, Johnson said he failed to identify the constable. Defendant testified this morning that between 11 a.m. and 3 p.m. on December 18 he was on duty in Garden Road, near the Peak Tram Station. He left his post once to go to the toilet.

He said he knew nothing about the wallet.

From the Files 25 years AGO

Although the Traffic Department is able to release only meagre details of the number of licences renewed and taken out since July 1, there is sufficient indication in the figures obtained to show that there has either been a serious falling off as compared with last year, or many car owners have not renewed their licences.

THE worst waterfront riots in the recent history of the Colony broke out at midnight last night when two groups of firemen from the American Mail line President Grant fought a bloody battle with bottles and slugs in Yau-mat and later on the Kowloon wharves.

One man lost his thumb which was ripped off by the jagged edges of a bottle and two others received terrible cuts and bruises on the head and body.

The riot was a sequel to the recent waterfront strike on the American Pacific Coast.

It appears that some of the firemen aboard the President Grant joined the ship as strike breakers and retained their jobs after the strike had been declared off.

Under big banner headlines the Morning Post reported "Red Revolution in Spain" and went on to report that red revolution had broken out in Asturias, most northerly province of Spain and threatened to sweep southward bringing bloodshed and destruction in its wake. Rioting on a major scale broke out in various parts of the country yesterday, as Communists, Socialists and Syndicalists combined in calling a general strike which may paralyse the economic life of the entire nation.

The outbreak which was heralded by the fall of the Sanchez Cabinet, was really caused by the elevation of three Catholic Agrarians (followers of the Fascist Senator Gil Robles) to cabinet rank.

A N American report said that air-conditioning is reaching the point where the average home owner can afford what once was considered a business man's luxury. An average six-room house can be air-conditioned at a cost of around $U.S.1,000.

The constable, Leo Shu-hing, 30, of 274 Shanghai Street, first floor, denied the charge.

At a previous hearing, an 11-year-old student of St. Joseph's College, Simon Johnson, testified that while he was walking down a footpath near the tram after school on December 18 he saw a brown wallet on the ground. He picked it up and found two $U.S.100 banknotes and a number of cardboard discs inside.
